Landmark East School in Wolfville, Nova Scotia

Landmark East School is a small, independent co-ed school for students diagnosed with learning disabilities in grades 3 through 12 and provides quality academic programs with personal growth experiences for each student. The approximately 60-75 students who attend Landmark East are diagnosed with a learning disability including dyslexia, attention deficit disorder or a nonverbal learning disability. Class sizes range in elementary and middle school from 1 to 6 students and in high school from 1 to 9 students. Academic programs are fully approved by the Nova Scotia Department of Education and individual intensive support classes are available for students, as required. All students participate in a daily advisory program as well as physical activity. All middle and high school students participate in a supervised daily study/homework program. The school is located in Wolfville, Nova Scotia – a small university town nestled in the Annapolis Valley.
